

Deskretary – An office secretary

The secretary has long been an appreciated furniture for freeing up extra space in our homes. But a lack in sufficient workspace has kept it from making a natural transition into the office. Deskretary is a big brother to the traditional secretary in more than one sense. As it is opened, the legs extend to carry a full sized tabletop. Once closed, Deskretary politely takes a step back again to hide your belongings. Giving others room to work while you are not there.
