

SEBASTIAN ERIKSSON

THE GLASS CASE

The last contact lens case you'll ever need

The use of contact lenses is an essential part of daily life for a great number of people across the globe.

For people wearing monthly or weekly disposable lenses you need a case to keep the lenses from drying out when they're not being used. These cases are always made from plastic and are usually thrown away as soon as you buy a new bottle of lens solution, where a new plastic case is generally included.

As a user of contact lenses myself, I've experienced the wasteful system of wearing monthly disposable lenses and throwing away perfectly fine cases just because there is no better alternative. That's why this glass case was created. The last case you'll ever need.