Jewellery design „decorated“ with weapons to draw attention to violence against women

Celine Marie Wolf

According to the WHO, one in three women worldwide experiences violence in physical or sexual form in her lifetime. Despite the fact that things have changed for the better in recent decades, most of the outside world is in no way safe for women, who are exposed to violence every day. Based on this data and the misogyny associated with it, Loaded Jewellery draws attention to the problem of „violence against women“. The objects shown here combine jewellery with common weapons, such as grenades or throwing stars.
